INTRODUCTION

This paper aims at discussing the description of Malay prepositions in digital materials selected at random. Specifically, the aims of this study are to: define the concept of preposition accurately, identify the form and function of prepositions, determine the total and the list of prepositions, and identify the meaning of each preposition in a structure.

CONCEPT AND TERMS OF PREPOSITIONS

There are four terms used by Malay grammarians to refer to the concept of preposition. The terms are ‘sendi nama’ (Z’aba, 1961; Nik Safiah Karim et al., 2005), ‘kata depan’ (Asmah Haji Omar, 1993), ‘preposisi’ (Harimurti Kridalaksana et al., 1985; Anton M. Moeliono et al. 1988) and ‘kata sendi’ (Asraf Abdul Wahab, 1989; Abdullah Hassan, 2006). The use of ‘sendi nama’ limits the noun phrase to be used after it, while verbs, adverbs, and adjectives may also be present in front of a preposition. Meanwhile the use of the term ‘kata depan’ is translated from English as pre-position. Therefore, the most appropriate term is ‘kata sendi’ (preposition) that may become ‘frasa sendi’ (prepositional phrase) if the preposition is used in a phrase.

This study shows that the word after a preposition is not limited to noun phrases, but other words such as verbs, adjectives, and adverbs, may be placed at noun phrase’s position. Examples:

1. Meluaskan kuasa secara diplomatik dan pelayaran serta perjalanan ke negara-negara sebelah Timur telah menyebabkan bidang perdagangan mula berkembang di Eropah. (PGB) ('diplomatik' is an adverb)
2. Subjek diminta membaca dan mencatatkan apa saja yang mereka fikirkan semasa membaca. (PIP) ('membaca' is a verb)

FORMS AND FUNCTION OF PREPOSITIONS

Analysis towards all prepositions is done to prove that such a word has a function as a preposition or otherwise. Two approaches are used to implement the analysis.

1. Syntagmatic analysis shows the relationship between prepositions with a certain word in a sentence. Collocation relationship of preposition with other words can aid the researcher to understand the function of each preposition.
2. Paradigmatic analysis is done on words that do not have a definite status as prepositions. Comparison of prepositions with similar functions with the words is carried out.

As an example, to show 'berhubung dengan' has a status as a preposition, a syntagmatic analysis and a paradigmatic analysis are done with the prepositions 'tentang' and 'mengenai' as in the example below:

Table 3.1: Syntagmatic and Paradigmatic relationships of 'berhubung dengan'

Word Prior To	Preposition	Word After
Keputusan	berhubung dengan tentang mengenai	pemilihan itu belum diputuskan lagi.

The findings show that there are three forms of prepositions. These forms are the single, derived and compound ones. Each preposition grouped in these forms is analyzed from the aspect of form and function in the sentence to prove its status as a preposition.

SINGLE FORM PREPOSITIONS

This form is most commonly discussed. There are 39 prepositions that exist in Bahasa Melayu. They are; akan, akibat, antara, atas, bagai, bagi, bak, berkat, buat, dalam, dari, dekat, demi, dengan, di, fasal, guna, hingga, ibarat, ke, kecuali, keliling, kerana, ketika, laksana, macam, oleh, pada, sama, sampai, sejak, sementara, sempena, seperti, serta, tanpa, tentang, umpama, and untuk.

The prepositions analyzed are always collocated with a noun or other form of words that is present after it and its function is to show the logical relationship between the noun or other words, with the other parts in the sentence. Examples of the occurrences of 'single form' are as follow:

1. Dan meskipun ketam-ketam itu belum juga habis, tetapi pada malam-malamnya Jeha tidak lagi memanggil nama lakinya yang mati akibat busung seluruh tubuh itu. (RSJ) (logic of cause and effect)
2. Setelah sampai maka dilihat oleh Laksamana dan Maharaja Setia kubur itu panjangnya antara nisan kepala datang kepada nisan kaki sehabis-habis kuat dua kali orang melompat. (HHT) (logic of place)

DERIVED PREPOSITIONS

This type of prepositions has prefixes, suffixes, middle inflection or both prefix and suffix. 38 derived prepositions are found. Examples are; bersama, berserta, mengikut, menjelang, menurut, seakan, sebagai, secara, sehingga, sekeliling, sekitar, seluruh, semacam, semasa, semenjak, sepanjang, serata, seumpama, sewaktu, terhadap, termasuk, bagaikan, lantaran, berdasarkan, berkaitan, berkenaan, melainkan, melalui, menerusi, mengenai, sehinggakan and sehubungan. For most of the derived prepositions, the original words are not prepositions but other types of words.

The study finds that all the prepositions are collocated with nouns or noun phrases, or other types of phrases that are present after them and their functions are to relate nouns or noun phrases, or other types of phrases with the other parts in the sentence. Examples of sentences that prove the above point are as follows:

1. Ketika duduk di tepi sungai Rochor menantikan rezeki yang mungkin mengalir bersama air sungai itulah dia ditemui Mutalib, ayah Nahidah. (Sal) (logic of place, together)
2. Pada peringkat awal penyelidikannya, dia mendapat bukti bahawa penduduk dalam komuniti ini memberikan penghormatan di antara satu dengan lain mengikut kriteria pekerjaan. (PA) (logic of place)

3. Sejumlah 429 responden daripada lebih 15 buah petempatan sekitar Kajang telah ditemubual. (PGB) (logic of place)

COMPOUND PREPOSITIONS

Compound prepositions are formed when two or more words are combined through the convention of spelling as one word or spelled as separated words. This study identified and proved 50 compound prepositions that are listed to function as prepositions. Examples are; akibat daripada, atas sebab, berbanding dengan, berdasarkan kepada, bergantung kepada, berhubung dengan, berhubungan dengan, berkait dengan, berkaitan dengan, berkenaan dengan, bersama dengan, bersama oleh, bersangkutan dengan, bersempena dengan, bertentangan dengan, darihal, daripada, dengan hal, hingga ke, kepada, melainkan ke, menyentuh mengenai, menyentuh tentang, oleh hal, oleh kerana, oleh sebab, padahal, sama dengan, sampai kepada, sebagaimana dalam, sebagaimana dengan, sehubungan dengan, seiring dengan, sejak dari, selain daripada, selaras dengan, tanpa melalui, and untuk ke.

The sentences that prove the above point are as follows:

1. Maka darihal perkara hamba ini punya bicara terserahlah kepada Amirulmukminin. (Klasik) (logic of place)
2. Sebahagian daripada buah-buah itu telah terlepas ke dalam perut burung-burung tiak. (RSJ) (logic of place)
3. Mati hidup hanya bergantung kepada padi sahaja. (RSJ) (logic of cause and effect)

SUMMARY OF THE FUNCTIONS OF PREPOSITIONS

From the above discussion, it can be summarized that there are only three functions of prepositions, and they are to show the logical relationship between the type of word or phrase with another type of word, phrase or clause in the following manner:

1. Place and direction (examples: di, dari, hingga, ke, kepada, kerana, and pada)
2. Time (examples: pada, hingga, sampai, menjelang and sehingga), and
3. Cause and effect (examples: akibat, bagi, oleh, kerana, sebab, oleh sebab, oleh kerana, berdasarkan kepada and berkaitan dengan).

Meanings of Prepositions

The meaning of a preposition is discussed using Key Word In-Context (KWIC) approach, it looks at the context of presence of a word in a sentence. Apart from this approach, the collocation relationship of a preposition with other words in the sentence is also studied to confirm the status of the preposition and to understand the meaning.

Type of preposition based on meaning

1. Preposition of Place: di, dalam, pada (logic of place). Examples:
  - Maka di atas talam batil itu ia berjalan. (SM = Sejarah Melayu)
  - Lahuma terasa sebak dalam dada. (RSJ = Ranjau Sepanjang Jalan)
2. Preposition of Time: dari, pada, dalam, hingga, sampai, sewaktu, semasa, pada sekitar (logic of time). Examples:
  - Tahun ini cuti sekolah berakhir pada 6hb Januari; kerana universiti belum lagi menukar tarikh cutinya. (PIP = Pembelajaran & Implikasi Pendidikan)
  - Jeha tidak akan habis dalam seminggu, fikirnya. (RSJ)
3. Preposition of Direction (Place and Time): ke, dari, daripada, hingga, sampai, kepada, melalui, menerusi, hingga ke, sampai kepada, sehingga ke, sehingga kepada, sehingga menjelang, sejak dari, sejak di, untuk ke (logic of place and direction). Examples:
  - Jeha sendiri sudah tiga kali ke kubur Lahuma. (RSJ)
  - Sinar bulan masuk melalui tingkap dan hinggap pada tubuh-tubuh anak-anak dan bininya. (RSJ)

Examples:

- Selama ini Jeha belum pernah mengerjakan sawah tanpa Lahuma. (RSJ)
- Istilah bebas dirujukkan kepada kemudahan laluan keluar-masuk tanpa melalui pekarangan tempat kediaman. (PGB)

CONCLUSION

This paper has answered principal questions on preposition. From the analysis and discussions, the following can be concluded:

1. The use of the term 'sendi nama' only limits the function it plays. By limiting the word or noun phrase as an element present after the preposition, will only cause confusion to the language users. This study suggests the use of the term 'kata sendi' to replace the terms 'sendi nama', 'kata sendi nama', 'kata depan' and 'preposisi'.
2. The use of the term 'kata sendi' makes the definition of preposition more open. 'Kata sendi'(preposition) has been summarized as a word that functions to connect a word with another word to form grammatically correct sentence. the definition that is summarized in this study is parallel with the definition given by C.A Mees (1969), Asmah Haji Omar (1993), Harimurti Kridalaksana et al.(1985), Anton M. Moeliono et al.(1988), and Abdullah Hassan (2006).

3. This study identified three (3) forms of prepositions. They are: single, inflected, and compound form prepositions. This study discovered that a large portion of prepositions listed by Abdullah Hassan (1998, 2006) can function as prepositions.
4. This study analyses a total of 156 prepositions. However, 132 prepositions, that is 40 in the single form, 39 in the form inflections, and 53 compound forms have been proven of their status as prepositions.
5. Based on the three main functions of the prepositions, i.e. to show place and direction, time, and cause and effect, this study has detailed prepositions into 30 types.
